

How to Become GDPR READY

The General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) will completely change how you handle personal information, from one end of your organisation to the other. And it all changes in May 2018. Do you understand what it takes to comply? Whether you are taking your first step of awareness or are ready for certification as a data protection professional, the IAPP is here to help you along the way.

AWARENESS

Gain access to a broad knowledge of GDPR requirements through the IAPP's three-part on-demand DPO Ready Web Conference Series.

TRAIN

Build your knowledge of EU data protection laws and how to operationalise them through the IAPP's CIPP/E and CIPM trainings.

GDPR READY

Show the world you're prepared for the GDPR with globally recognised, ANSI/ISO-accredited Certified Information Privacy Professional/Europe and Certified Information Privacy Manager certifications.

DPO QUALIFIED

ENGAGE

Find the tools, continuing education and networking you need to be effective in your GDPR compliance role through IAPP events and resources.

EXPERTISE

Demonstrate your mastery of privacy issues with the data protection profession's highest recognition: Fellow of Information Privacy.

The combination of IAPP's Certified Information Privacy Professional/Europe (CIPP/E) as well as the Certified Information Privacy Manager (CIPM), a certification in privacy program management, covers the domains of knowledge required to hold the role of a data protection officer (DPO) under the GDPR, according to an article written by Eric Lachaud in International Data Privacy Law, a journal published by Oxford University Press.
